Favorite Thing About Statesville

All of the participants said similar things that boil down to community. Here is the list:

- Events like today
- Small town feel / Know people when out / Sense of community
- You're a part of the community / People are accepting
- The people are phenomenal and many have been here a long time
- Everything / It's my home for 78 years
- Small town feel / Get to know people / Can talk to leaders face to face

What I Would Change (I said Improve)

These grouped around breaking down social divides, safety and growth. Here is the list

- More events like this that bring people closer
- Social divide between North & South Statesville
- Have more serious conversations with each other that lead to action (Hard Conversations)
- Lighting in East End is bad / Unsafe / People might get hit by car
- Give away reflectors for bikes
- Lighting on Southside of Statesville need improvement
- Increase frequency of Downtown Shuttle / Too many older adults having to walk
- Have a "citizen's patrol" for downtown. Similar to ones on college campuses that walk people to dorms at night.
- Do more stuff to bring people to town / Need something to see & do / Like Live after Five
- Open more stores downtown / Grocery store for downtown residents
- Keep stores open later. If someone gets off at 5 pm, can't shop downtown. Maybe just one night a week – Tuesday or Wednesday.
- Market Statesville proximity to Lake Norman more

Subject: Notes (Unencrypt)

Brett,

I wanted to follow up on my notes from table, as they may very well have been scattered, and my handwriting isn't that great.

My table included 5 persons and myself, and I think 1 was "supposed to be" at table 24, but sat with us at table 20.

- this is Jeff with PHS's wife. She lives on St. Andrews in Statesville Country Club area.
 - Pastor of Cornerstone Church, and Headmaster of their school. I think his daughter is Lead or at least with Grill for God, as he noted this.
 - works for Hospice of Iredell, lives in N. Iredell
 - associates's degree, works at Wal Mart

 - went to South Iredell, currently at Mitchell, heading to Air Force in a month
- We had 1 Philly transplant, 1 NY transplant, 1 Elk Park, NC transplant, and 3 Natives of Statesville/Iredell (including me). We had 2 middle aged ladies and 2 20 somethings, 1 elderly (not too elderly) and I. I recall all names but 1, but he was supposed to be on table 24 by badge, but I didn't figure that mattered too much. Just couldn't grab his name because he was to my immediate right.

What do you like best about Statesville: The overall feeling here was that Statesville is a "Community" and that people are welcomed here.

- That there is more to do in community than in other places, and that this type of event wouldn't be accepted in large city. 1 noted it'd be shut down in NY, they wouldn't allow.
- People noted that diversity seemed welcomed in Statesville vs. other areas.
- Statesville was attempting to engage community from all levels better than other places, contrasts were given to NYC, Mooresville and Elk Park. 1 transplant noted that when they moved here, they were told to live on "Lake" but they went and spent time down there and didn't feel "home" or welcomed, but came to Statesville, went uptown/downtown and loved the vibe, loved how they were treated by others walking and immediately decided to live in Statesville (this was Jeff Smith with PHS's wife, currently lives on St Andrews).
- 1 noted there was lots to do, but information about events wasn't dispersed well.
- Events were shared, as some weren't aware of Friday events downtown.
- Several noted Mitchell CC is a GEM.

What would you like to see changed about Statesville: Overall there were multiple views, no one was negative at all, and/or bashing other than simply noting things. I'm not sure there was more here than the positives, as the group really was more positive than negative in any way.

Longest Table Feedback Points:

- Youth – this was likely biggest area of discussion. Several varied things here. Noted that there's only 1 Rec Center that's "Affordable" as YMCA isn't, so you have to go to Fitness Center. Comment was made, how can you have a McDonalds on so many corners, but only 1 place for youth to play ball, workout, etc. Again noted most at table felt YMCA was overpriced/overvalued
- Youth – more to do. No one could name anything directed at youth/young adults, all efforts seemed to be aimed at the very young/elementary level, and nothing for teens to do or go in Statesville. Suggestions of parks that serve them better, skate park, Wi-Fi- gaming area to safely gather, and other things, as the notation was that "we either stay home, go to movies, or leave Statesville, as there's nothing to do, and bowling gets old, and the place isn't good."
- Feeling that "Old MONEY" dictates and directs what happens in Statesville, and that those with new ideas and views are shunned or pushed away as not knowing what's "good" for community. It was very interesting, as there was consensus feeling of this from the 3 newcomers, as well as the other 2 persons at table. I stayed out of this one, but it's visible in many ways.
- Several voiced frustrations with buildings that were in horrible shape, from businesses to homes. I can't say where all lived, but appears only all engage Statesville. Notation of how embarrassing it is to see buildings like the grocery store at Mall, and Mall itself, as well as several buildings downtown. Notations were made that some communities had horrible landscaping, and no one seemed to care about the appearance of homes, and nothing was being done. I didn't ask "where" these homes were.
- Comments were made about how it doesn't make sense that we can afford all of these new Gov't buildings that are so pretty, but can't invest in youth at all, with something for them to do. 1 person commented, that "maybe if they'd have something for young people to do, there's not be a need for that big old jail they are building." Several other relatively new public buildings were noted in this, as why did we do that vs. something for young adults/youth first.
- Transportation was noted as a massive issue, and linked to most of the negatives that came out. All commented on how they didn't understand how Statesville had no means of transportation that made it possible for maintaining employment unless you had a car. 1 participant, who works at Wal Mart noted that he is "stuck in job" because his vision doesn't allow him to drive, and he's been passed over for a significantly better position because he can't get home from work due to no way to get home, as it'd conflict with his wife's job. Others noted the system we do have is excessively limited and only a few can use it.

Suggestions made:

- Do something to address transportation
- Do something to address youth having so little to do
- Do something to allow more input, to take away feeling that "Old money" (1 person said this and 3 others chimed in agreement) dictated what happens in Statesville. Another noted that you can't keep telling people to get involved, as not all can afford to run for office, or be at every meeting.

Anyway, that's a brief, or not so brief summary of my table. I'm not sure what "next step" is, but I'd love to see a meeting, where the Elected Leaders, in particular those that came and served or assisted, or were present, along with Business leaders (Like Paul C and others) and Community Partners (You and I and others) along with table facilitators actually sat down and discussed it, assuming others got what I got.

I personally think, if we are going to ask the questions and leaders are present, we need to respond. I talked briefly to Will, who also facilitated a table and he noted his table discussions were eerily similar to what ours was...So I think the questions were awesome and open ended.

Overall, GREAT JOB on putting this together, I realize it took tons of work, and the weather was great.
